CRITERION 4: STUDENT SUPPORT AND PROGRESSION

5.1 Student Monitoring and Support

5.1.1 Does the university have a system for student support and monitoring? If yes, what are its structural and functional characteristics?

The newly admitted students are apprised of the activities of the counseling cell during the orientation program by the Chief Student Counselor appointed by the Director. The department maintains faculty membership in this cell on the advice of the Chief Student Counselor. General information is sent out to all students of the department informing them of the services extended by the cell and inviting them to avail the faculty coordination of the department. The students are encouraged to seek guidance on academic, general or psychological issues, if necessary. This semester color sheets are forwarded to the Student Counselor of the department by the Academic Section who prepares a list of students whose performance is observed to be below average or poor. Such students are then invited to meet the counselor on any faculty member of their choice on a fixed date and time changes possible on request of the students. Such meetings are arranged at least twice in a semester and are chaired by the Head of the Department and may include any body who might be of help to the student. The students are advised to improve performance and are given suggestions or options for clearing their backlog courses.

The advising process is designed to ensure that each student selects a set of courses during each semester that meets minimum grade requirements and which can result in the student making efficient and steady progress in meeting the academic requirements as listed in the course schedule. The advising process also helps in identifying and solving problems the student may be encountering in achieving the educational objectives.

Each department has an Academic Counselor for advising the students. He is also a point contact for issues related to academic performance or any other issues faced by the students. The students are encouraged to meet him to seek guidance on any matter related to academic performance. Individual faculty members routinely spend time with students during and after classes discussing any issues related to the course, student problems, and advise them
